1. What is Raksha Bandhan? (Explained for Children)

What is Raksha Bandhan? — Simple Answer for Kids

Raksha Bandhan is a special Indian festival that celebrates the love between brothers and sisters. On this day, sisters tie a beautiful thread called a Rakhi on their brothers' wrists. The brother says, 'I will always take care of you, sister!' And then everyone eats yummy sweets together and has fun!

The name 'Raksha Bandhan' comes from two Hindi/Sanskrit words: 'Raksha' means protection, and 'Bandhan' means a bond or tie. So Raksha Bandhan means 'a bond of protection' — isn't that a beautiful name for a festival about love?

2. Raksha Bandhan 2026 & 2027 Dates

2026	August 28, 2026	Friday	Shravana Purnima
2027	August 16, 2027	Monday	Shravana Purnima

3. Raksha Bandhan Story for Kids

The Story of Draupadi and Krishna — A Tale of True Friendship

Story Time!

Once upon a time, there was a kind and loving woman named Draupadi. She had a very good friend named Lord Krishna — just like you might have a best friend! One day, Krishna accidentally hurt his finger and it was bleeding. Draupadi did not think for even a second. She quickly tore a piece of her beautiful saree and tied it around Krishna's finger to stop the bleeding. Krishna was so touched by her kindness that he said, 'Draupadi, you showed me true care and love. I promise I will always be there to protect you whenever you need help.' Krishna kept his promise. This is why Raksha Bandhan is so special — it is a festival about promises, care, and love. Just like Draupadi and Krishna, brothers and sisters promise to always be there for each other!

The Story of the Sister and the Thread

Long, long ago, in a faraway kingdom, a sister loved her brother very much. Every day, she prayed that her brother would always be happy, healthy, and safe. One day, she took a beautiful colourful thread and tied it on her brother's wrist — with all her love and all her prayers woven into it. The brother looked at the thread and felt his sister's love. He said, 'Sister, I promise — wherever I go, I will always look after you.'

From that day on, every year on the full moon day of the month of Shravana, sisters and brothers all over India tie the Rakhi and make their promise again. And that is how Raksha Bandhan became our favourite festival!

4. History & Origin — Simplified for Young Learners

Raksha Bandhan is a very, very old festival — it has been celebrated in India for thousands of years! Here are some of the stories that explain how it began:

- The Gods and Goddesses story: Long ago, a goddess named Shachi tied a special thread on the wrist of Lord Indra (the king of the sky) before he went to a big battle. The thread gave him strength and he won! This is one of the oldest stories of Raksha Bandhan.
- Draupadi and Krishna (our favourite story for children!): Draupadi tied a cloth on Krishna's wounded finger, and Krishna promised to always protect her. He kept his promise!
- A Queen and an Emperor: A brave queen named Karnavati once sent a Rakhi to a king named Humayun, asking him to be her brother and protect her kingdom. The king respected the rakhi and came to her help. This shows how powerful the rakhi thread is!

Even today, the rakhi thread carries the same power — not a magical power, but the power of love, trust, and a heartfelt promise.

5. Significance — What Does Raksha Bandhan Mean?

- It celebrates siblings: Raksha Bandhan is the festival of brothers and sisters — it reminds us to love and take care of each other.
- It is about promises: The rakhi is not just a thread — it is a promise! Sisters pray for their brothers, and brothers promise to always protect their sisters.
- It brings families together: On this day, families come together, share food, give gifts, and celebrate their love. This is one of the best parts of the festival!
- It celebrates kindness: The spirit of Raksha Bandhan teaches children to be kind, caring, and protective — not just of siblings, but of friends, animals, and even trees!
- It is for everyone: Today, sisters tie rakhis on sisters too. Children tie rakhis on trees to protect nature. The festival belongs to everyone who believes in love and care.

6. How We Celebrate Raksha Bandhan — Step by Step

Here is what happens on Raksha Bandhan morning:

23. Early morning: Everyone wakes up early, takes a bath, and wears new or special clothes.
24. The puja thali: The sister arranges a beautiful plate (thali) with the rakhi, a red powder called roli, some rice grains (akshat), a small lamp (diya), and yummy sweets.
25. Tilak time: The sister puts a red tilak (a dot or mark) on her brother's forehead to bless him.
26. Tying the rakhi: The sister ties the colourful rakhi on her brother's right wrist while saying a prayer.
27. Aarti: The sister waves the lamp around her brother's face to wish him health and happiness.
28. Sweets: Everyone eats delicious sweets like laddoo, barfi, or gulab jamun. Yum!
29. Gifts: The brother gives his sister a gift — it could be a toy, a book, jewellery, or anything that makes her smile.
30. Celebration: The whole family celebrates together with laughter, stories, and happy memories.

Essay: 200 Words | Classes 3–4

Raksha Bandhan is one of India's most beautiful festivals. It celebrates the special bond between brothers and sisters. The name 'Raksha Bandhan' means 'bond of protection' — Raksha means protection and Bandhan means bond. It is celebrated on the full moon day (Purnima) of the Hindu month of Shravana, usually in August. On this day, sisters tie a colourful thread called a rakhi on their brothers' wrists. They apply a tilak (red mark) on their brothers' foreheads, wave a lamp, and pray for their health and happiness. Brothers give their sisters gifts and promise to protect them always. Everyone exchanges sweets and celebrates joyfully. Raksha Bandhan has a beautiful story behind it. In the Mahabharata, Draupadi once tied a piece of cloth on Lord Krishna's wounded finger to stop the bleeding. Touched by her kindness, Krishna promised to always protect her — and he kept his promise. Today, Raksha Bandhan has grown even bigger. Sisters tie rakhis on brothers, children tie rakhis on trees to protect nature, and communities tie rakhis on soldiers and teachers. It is a festival of love and care for everyone. Happy Raksha Bandhan! May all our bonds grow stronger every year.

10. Raksha Bandhan Speeches

Short Speech in English for Kids (~100 Words, 1 Minute)

Kids' Speech — ~1 Minute

Good morning everyone! Raksha Bandhan is one of my favourite festivals! It is the festival of brothers and sisters. On this day, sisters tie a beautiful thread called rakhi on their brothers' wrists. And brothers say, 'I will always take care of you, sister!' Raksha Bandhan teaches us to love and care for each other. It also teaches us that promises are very important — and we must always keep them! Let's celebrate it with joy, sweets, and lots of love! Thank you! Happy Raksha Bandhan!

Long Speech in English (~400 Words)

Respected teachers, dear parents, and my wonderful friends — Good morning to all!

Today, I am very happy and excited to speak about one of India's most heart-warming festivals — Raksha Bandhan! It is the festival that celebrates the beautiful bond between brothers and sisters.

The name 'Raksha Bandhan' has two parts. 'Raksha' means protection, and 'Bandhan' means a bond or a tie. Together, they mean 'a bond of protection.' And that is exactly what this festival is — a promise between siblings to always look out for each other.

On Raksha Bandhan, sisters wake up early, put on their nicest clothes, and prepare a beautiful puja thali. This plate has a colourful rakhi, a red powder called roli, some rice grains, a small lamp, and of course — delicious sweets! The sister puts a tilak on her brother's forehead, waves the lamp in front of him, and then ties the rakhi on his right wrist. The brother gives his sister a gift and makes his most important promise: 'I will always be there for you, sister.'

Raksha Bandhan has been celebrated in India for thousands of years. One of the most famous stories is from the Mahabharata. Draupadi — a kind and brave woman — once tore a piece of her beautiful saree to bandage Lord Krishna's wounded finger. Krishna was so moved by her selfless love that he promised to always protect her — and he kept that promise. This is the spirit of Raksha Bandhan.

Today, Raksha Bandhan has grown even more beautiful. Sisters tie rakhis on sisters. Children tie rakhis on trees to promise to protect nature. Communities tie rakhis on soldiers and teachers to say thank you. The message of the festival is simple: let us protect and care for the people and the world around us.

Raksha Bandhan also teaches us some very important life lessons. It teaches us that love is not just a feeling — it is an action. It teaches us that a promise, once made, should be kept with all our heart. And it teaches us that the most precious things in life — like a sibling's love — cannot be bought or sold. They can only be cherished.

As students of Rainbow International Pre-School, we celebrate Raksha Bandhan with joy, creativity, and togetherness. We make rakhis with our own little hands. We share stories and songs. We learn the meaning of this beautiful festival.

Let us celebrate it with all our heart — with love, gratitude, and the sweetest sweets!

Thank you, and Happy Raksha Bandhan to everyone!

14. DIY Rakhi Craft Activity (Ages 3–6)

Making a rakhi is one of the most joyful activities for young children during Raksha Bandhan! Here is a simple, fun craft that little ones aged 3–6 can do at home or in school.

What You Need

- A piece of thick card (old greeting card works great!)
- Scissors (child-safe, with adult help)
- Colourful sketch pens, crayons, or watercolours
- Glue stick
- Decorative items: glitter, sequins, stickers, small buttons, foam shapes
- A long ribbon or thick thread/string (for tying on the wrist)
- Optional: craft foam, feathers, small beads

Step-by-Step Instructions

100. Draw a circle, heart, or star shape on the card. This will be the face of your rakhi! (For very young children, an adult can do this step.)
101. Cut out the shape carefully. (For ages 3–4, an adult or teacher helps with cutting.)
102. Colour your shape brightly with crayons or sketch pens. Use your favourite colours!
103. Decorate your rakhi face with glitter, sequins, stickers, or small foam shapes. Be as creative as you like!
104. Wait for the glue to dry completely.
105. Punch a small hole at the top of your decorated shape, or attach a ribbon using glue.
106. Thread the ribbon through the hole, or glue the ribbon directly to the back of the card shape.
107. Your handmade rakhi is ready! Tie it lovingly on your brother's, sister's, or friend's wrist.

Teacher Tip: You can also make a 'class rakhi' on a strip of paper with every child's handprint — a beautiful collaborative project that celebrates collective care and friendship!

15. How to Explain Raksha Bandhan to a Toddler (Ages 1.5–3)

Young toddlers may not understand the full depth of the festival, but they can absolutely participate in the joy! Here's how to introduce Raksha Bandhan to your little one:

- Keep it simple and sensory: 'Today is a special day! Sister/brother is going to tie a pretty thread on your wrist — like a bracelet! Isn't it beautiful?'
- Use words they know: Instead of 'protection,' say 'taking care of.' 'We love each other and take care of each other — that's what Raksha Bandhan is about!'
- Make it about the senses: Let them feel the texture of the rakhi, smell the flowers on the thali, taste the sweets, see the diya flickering. Festivals are multi-sensory experiences for toddlers.
- Read a picture book: Look for simple illustrated books about Raksha Bandhan at your local bookstore or library. Bedtime reading makes the festival feel magical.
- Celebrate at their level: At age 2, tying even a simple thread on their doll's wrist can feel like a real celebration — let them play along!
- Focus on feelings: 'Do you feel happy? Didi/Bhaiya loves you so much! That's why today is special.' Emotional learning is the deepest learning.

16. Activity Ideas for Ages 1.5–6 Years

For Ages 1.5–3 Years (Toddlers)

- Sensory Thali Exploration: Set up a puja thali with safe items — flower petals, rice, marigolds — and let your toddler explore the textures and colours.
- Rakhi Touch-and-Feel: Gather different rakhis — silky, beaded, woolly — and let your toddler feel them. Talk about the different colours and textures.
- Festive Dress-Up: Put your little one in traditional festive clothes and take photos. Toddlers love the excitement of getting dressed up!
- Sing the Rakhi Song: Sing a simple rhyme about brothers and sisters together. Music is a wonderful way to introduce cultural concepts.

For Ages 3–5 Years (Pre-Nursery to Kindergarten)

- Handprint Rakhi Card: Paint your child's hand and stamp it on card stock. Frame it as a keepsake or use it as the base of a rakhi greeting card.
- Rakhi Colouring Activity: Print or draw a simple rakhi outline and let children colour it with their favourite colours.
- String Threading: Give children different coloured strings, beads, and buttons to thread — developing fine motor skills while making a 'friendship bracelet.'
- Story Circle: Sit in a circle and tell the story of Draupadi and Krishna in simple, child-friendly language. Ask questions: 'What do you think happened next?'
- Sweets Making (with adult supervision): Help children roll simple laddoo balls from store-bought mixture — they'll love eating what they made!

For Ages 5–6 Years (Kindergarten / KG)

- Full Rakhi Craft (per Section 14 above): Children at this age can fully participate in the rakhi-making activity.
- Mini Drama: Act out the Draupadi-Krishna story or a simple story about siblings caring for each other.
- Raksha Bandhan Poster: Give children chart paper, crayons, and stickers to create their own Raksha Bandhan poster — great for display!
- Why Do We Celebrate? Conversation Circle: Ask children to share what they know about Raksha Bandhan. Write down their answers on chart paper — a beautiful way to capture their understanding.

20. Fun Facts for Children

133. India Post (the postal service) sees millions of rakhis mailed across the country every year — sisters send rakhis to brothers who live far away!
134. Some people make eco-friendly rakhis using seeds. After the festival, they plant the rakhi in the ground and a plant grows — isn't that amazing?
135. In some parts of India, children tie rakhis on trees to pledge to protect them. It is called an 'environmental Raksha Bandhan'!
136. You can tie a rakhi on anyone you love and want to protect — a best friend, a grandparent, or even a pet!
137. The longest rakhi ever made in India was several kilometres long — made by an entire community to celebrate together.
138. Raksha Bandhan is celebrated not just in India, but by Indian families all over the world — from Australia to the United Kingdom to the United States!
139. In Nepal, the same festival is called Janai Purnima. People change a special thread they wear around their body on this day.
140. Raksha Bandhan has been celebrated in India for more than 4,000 years — it is one of the oldest festivals still celebrated today!
141. On Raksha Bandhan, sisters do not only tie rakhis on brothers — in many families, girls tie rakhis on their sisters and best friends too!
142. Google has made a special 'Google Doodle' for Raksha Bandhan several times — showing how much the world loves this Indian festival!

21. Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

When is Raksha Bandhan 2027?

Raksha Bandhan 2027 is on Monday, August 16, 2027. It is observed on the Purnima (full moon) of the Hindu month Shravana.

When is Raksha Bandhan 2026?

Raksha Bandhan 2026 is on Friday, August 28, 2026.

What is Raksha Bandhan in simple words for a child?

Raksha Bandhan is a special festival where sisters tie a beautiful thread (rakhi) on their brothers' wrists. Brothers say, 'I will always take care of you, sister!' Then everyone eats sweets and celebrates together. It is a festival of love and promises between siblings.

How do I explain Raksha Bandhan to a 2-year-old?

Keep it simple! Tell your toddler: 'Today is a special day! Sister/brother is going to put a pretty bracelet on your wrist. It means we love each other very much!' Let them experience the sensory elements — the colourful rakhi, the sweets, the festive atmosphere — and they will feel the joy even without fully understanding the ritual.

What is Narali Purnima?

Narali Purnima is Maharashtra's festival on the same day as Raksha Bandhan. 'Narali' means coconut. Fishing communities offer coconuts to the sea god, praying for safe seas and a good fishing season. It celebrates the connection between the community and nature.

How can preschools celebrate Raksha Bandhan?

Preschools can celebrate with: rakhi-making craft activities (as in Section 14), simple storytelling about siblings and friendship, a 'kindness circle' where children say one thing they appreciate about a friend, festive dressing-up activities, nursery rhymes about Raksha Bandhan, and sharing homemade treats. The focus should be on love, friendship, and caring for each other.

What is an eco-friendly rakhi?

An eco-friendly rakhi is made from natural or recycled materials — seeds (planted after the festival to grow into a plant), recycled paper, organic cotton, dried flowers, or natural dyes — instead of plastic or synthetic materials. These are wonderful craft activities for young children.

Can I tie a rakhi on a friend or a girl's wrist?

Absolutely! Today, Raksha Bandhan is celebrated beyond the traditional brother-sister bond. Sisters tie rakhis on sisters, friends tie rakhis on friends, and children tie rakhis on trees. The festival is about love, care, and the promise of protection — and those values apply to every relationship.

What sweets are made for Raksha Bandhan?

Common Raksha Bandhan sweets include laddoo (besan, boondi, or motichoor), barfi, gulab jamun, halwa, and chakli-shaped sweets. In Maharashtra, narali bhat (sweet coconut rice) is made for Narali Purnima. For young children, small bite-sized laddoos or fruit-based sweets are a wonderful choice.

What activities can toddlers do on Raksha Bandhan?

Toddlers can: explore a sensory thali (with safe items like petals, rice, flower heads), touch and feel different rakhis, participate in festive dress-up, listen to simple stories about siblings, sing rakhi rhymes with parents, and 'tie' a thread on a doll or stuffed toy as part of imaginative play. Keep activities sensory, playful, and pressure-free.

What is the story behind Raksha Bandhan for children?

The most child-friendly story is from the Mahabharata: Draupadi tied a piece of her saree on Lord Krishna's wounded finger to stop the bleeding. Krishna was so touched by her kindness that he promised to always protect her — and he kept his promise. This story teaches children that kindness earns loyalty, and promises must be kept.

22. Raksha Bandhan at Rainbow Preschool International, Thane

At Rainbow Preschool International, Thane, we believe that festivals are the world's oldest classroom. Raksha Bandhan is a festival that teaches children some of the most important values in life — love, kindness, care, and the power of a promise. And the best classroom for these lessons is a joyful, warm, and creative school environment.

How We Celebrate at RPS

- Rakhi-Making Art Activity: Our young learners (Playgroup to KG) create their own rakhis using safe, eco-friendly materials — paper, felt, foam, glitter, and natural threads. Each rakhi is unique, just like its maker!
- Story Time: Teachers narrate the story of Raksha Bandhan in warm, age-appropriate language — bringing mythology to life for little ears.
- Rakhi Rhymes & Songs: We sing rakhi songs and nursery rhymes together, filling the classroom with joy and laughter.
- Festive Dress-Up Day: Children come dressed in traditional festive clothes — a wonderful sensory and cultural experience.
- Kindness Circle: Children share one thing they love about a sibling or a friend. Building empathy, one kind word at a time.
- Eco-Rakhi Pledge: Older pre-school children tie rakhis on potted plants in the school garden, learning the value of caring for nature.

Rainbow International Pre-School is Thane's trusted early learning environment for children aged 1.5 to 5.5 years (Playgroup to Kindergarten). We offer smart classrooms, a CCTV-enabled safe campus, 100% female staff, GPS-enabled in-house transport, and a student-teacher ratio of 30:2 — ensuring that every child receives warm, individual attention. The Future Begins Here.
